I wonder how well these two blue labels will microfilm? I don't really know how the microfilm camera deals with colors. When John arrived at 13 P.P. Ce soir, he handed me these labels -- and several other sheets of labels. Shown here is a blue-T; perhaps a T-rail for railroads. I think perhaps he acquired them from behind Dimes.

At the Library, John got upset because he thought I was upset at him. I am still feeling out-of-sorts over the incident and 2 1/2 hours have elapsed since JVB left here for 46 Canada. He brought up the subject of the ride that his father spoke of on Wednesday. I said that the idea of a motorcycle ride in the cool air of autumn sounded like an excellent idea. John, I have the feeling, is not too interested in the idea. I think it is because: (1) he does not like the cold and does not want to drive in cold air, (2) he needs money and wants to work at the CPL on Saturday so that he can make some extra money. The subject will doubtless be brought up tomorrow. We shall see. If the ride materializes, that will be fine. On Sunday, JVB will spend the day with Harmon at the National Guard reserves "playing soldier." John is fascinated by military costume at the moment. He wears his camouflage hat at all times. He loves to put on his camouflage suit (as he did on Sunday afternoon) and walk through the woods. Perhaps on Sunday I will borrow one of the family vehicles and drive down to Hershey and see RTP. Perhaps one or all of his children would like to go for the ride to Hershey to see RTP? We shall see. Tomorrow should be a busy day -- 12 PM - BBC; hand in News story in BM; do Communism letter in BM; interview Joan Cosgrove; write a "Just for the Record" column. I would also like to finish addressing the NPG+LHR promo/mailers.
